

Here's something you may find interesting, either for WHGC/Buddhism or yourself, or both!
There is a fascinating guy who was a Jesuit priest, psychologist and Buddhist. His name is Anthony De Mello. (He died several years ago.) He wrote books, gave lectures and workshops, and practiced a combination of Christianity and Buddhism. (To the chagrin of the Catholic church which censured him.)

The clip below is a small snippet of a two-day workshop he gave in New York titled "Wake Up To Life." In this piece De Mello applies Buddhist practice to the topic: Love. Especially interesting is at approximately 5:45 how he specifically discusses the Four Noble Truths and marriage/relationships.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?NR=1&v=ILlxWMfHVZ4&feature=endscreen>

I'm not sure how this might be useable in WHGC. Nonetheless I thought you might like the piece. If not....Oooooommmmm.